PREFATORY NOTE.

The following Catalogue of the Yale Mission Library represents the beginning of a proposed collection of the entire Foreign Missionary literature of the Protestant nations of the world.

Such a comprehensive and complete collection would embrace not far from five thousand volumes. Of these fifteen hundred are already on the shelves. They consist, as will be seen, of the latest and most important American, British and Continental works relating to the Missions of the Protestant Churches of all denominations in Europe and America, together with publications of an earlier date which have been secured as opportunity offered and are certain to be useful for historical purposes.

The foundation of this Library was laid in a gift of copies of all translations of the Scriptures published or for sale by the American Bible Society, presented a few years since by the Hon. Wm. E. Dodge of New York, with the view of showing to the young men of the University what had been already done in giving the Scriptures to heathen and Mohammedan nations, and suggesting at the same time the possibility of their own participation in a work so fundamental and essential in all Protestant Missionary endeavor. To these translations, with the addition of a list of several versions contained in the University Library and marked by a star, the first place in this Catalogue has been assigned.

In the titles of the other works relating to the history of Missions, the alphabetical order has been followed in the names of authors and of the subjects of memoirs, but not in the case of the Periodicals and Reports of Missionary Societies, which are placed under these words respectively (see pp. 23, 26). For the sake of making the Catalogue more helpful, brief biographical notices and dates of death, so far as ascertained, have been given. By means of the index, the titles of the principal works in the Library which treat of Christian Missions in particular countries or parts of the world will be found without difficulty.

Books of travels in Missionary lands which do not relate to Christian Missions, and also works on non-Christian religions, the titles of which are given in the excellent Missionary bibliographies of Dean Vahl in Denmark, and the Rev. S. M. Jackson of New York, are not embraced in this collection, as they are generally accessible in the Library of the University.

The present Catalogue, which is printed for the immediate use of students who desire the latest and fullest information in regard to Foreign Missionary fields, will be followed, it is expected, by successive Supplements as the Library increases.

What now remains is to complete, so far and so fast as practicable, the collection of the following classes of books, viz. (1) History of modern Missions in various countries: India, China, Japan, the Sandwich Islands, Micronesia, Madagascar, Turkey, Persia, Africa, etc. (2) Missionary Biography. (3) History and annual reports of Missionary Societies at home and abroad. (4) Missionary Periodicals of different denominations in different countries: the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. (5) Missions to the Jews. (6) Missions to the Mohammedans.

For the warm interest and friendly aid of the officers of the Missionary Societies of various branches of the Christian Church at home and abroad, and of other friends who have shown their appreciation of the aim and value of such a library in this seat of learning, the most sincere thanks are due and are hereby cordially presented.

I. Translations of the Bible, made chiefly by Missionaries.

II. Works on Foreign Missions.

III. Works composed by Missionaries in or on the Vernacular Languages of Various Countries.

IV. Index.

I. TRANSLATIONS OF THE BIBLE OR PARTS OF IT MADE CHIEFLY BY MISSIONARIES.

"In Philology these Soldiers of the Cross have accomplished more than all the learned world beside. The publications of the American Board in and concerning foreign languages number already nearly two thousand titles in nearly forty different languages. Many of these are translations of the entire Bible. Many are vocabularies and grammars of languages previously unknown to civilized man, and in not a few instances of languages previously unwritten. Who can estimate the amount of patient, baffling toil involved in these issues of the Missionary press! How completely does it distance and throw into the shade the labors of retired scholars, in the shelter of well-stocked libraries, surrounded by reference books, cheered by the sympathy of men of kindred tastes and urged on by the anticipated plaudits of the erudite public in all lands."—Dr. Andrew P. Peabody in the North American Review.

PREFATORY NOTE.

In the present continuation of the Catalogue issued in January, 1892, are given the titles of the 1,665 additions made within the past year to the proposed Complete Historical Library of Modern Missions. With these additions the Library now consists of 3,175 volumes including pamphlets, or more than one-half of the estimated number of five thousand volumes required for a collection embracing the entire missionary literature of all denominations and in all Protestant lands.

For the progress so far made toward this consummation, the Library is largely indebted to the hearty interest and coöperation of the Secretaries or other officers of several of the leading Missionary Societies or Boards in the United States and Great Britain, who have generously presented sets more or less complete of their reports and periodicals. The names of these Societies will be easily recognized in the lists on pages 20 to 26. As the long and valuable series of the publications of the London Missionary Society for nearly a hundred years could not otherwise be secured, the Rev. G. Cousins, editor of its monthly organ "The Chronicle," had the special kindness to solicit the coöperation of friends in enabling him, so far as possible, to present complete sets of the publications of that Society from the beginning. By further generous contributions from the rooms of the New York Independent and the American Board, and from private sources, other Missionary periodicals, British and Continental, and many single volumes and numbers which have helped to complete imperfect sets, have been obtained.

In the work of collecting the Missionary literature of Denmark important aid has been received from the Rev. J. Vahl, President of the Danish Missionary Society, whose private Library of works relating more or less directly to Foreign Missions, is the largest of the kind in the world, and whose Missionary Atlas is universally recognized as the latest and best, and as along with his other publications, entitling him to the thanks of all friends of Modern Missions.

Toward the department of the Library which represents the contributions, exclusive of translations of the Bible, made by missionaries to the Christian literature of pagan and Mahommedan lands, the generous gift of the Rev. James S. Dennis, D.D., late of the Mission of the American Presbyterian Board in Syria, and at present Lecturer on Foreign Missions in the Theological Seminary in Princeton, calls for special acknowledgment. It consists of thirty-five bound volumes embracing a selection of the principal publications issued in Arabic from the press of the Presbyterian Board in Beirut, and is a striking exhibition of the nature and breadth of the noble work in which the missionaries and scholars at that Station are engaged.

It is hoped that by similar donations from other Mission fields, the next Catalogue will show still more impressively that the contributions of the 19th century to the Christian literature of the world are not confined to the Universities and Colleges of Europe and America or only to authors who dwell in Christian lands.

Another contribution to the Library, rendered specially interesting from its commemorative character, and consisting of forty of the latest and most important works on Foreign Missions, has been made by Miss Elizabeth Clarkson Jay of New York in memory, as the labels prefixed to the several volumes state, of her Huguenot ancestor Pierre Jay who, in 1685, fled from his home at La Rochelle, France, rather than forsake his faith.

To these and to all other friends not specially mentioned but gratefully remembered, by whose aid this Historical Library of Foreign Missions has been brought to its present state the most sincere thanks are due, in the joint hope that it will please the Lord of the harvest to make this memorial of the labors of his servants in pagan and Mahommedan lands contribute to the extension of his kingdom among men.

IV. Index.

"There are few things in human history that wear an aspect of higher moral grandeur than the opening of what are now our great Missions. One or two men, sent by this Church and by that, are seen going forth, in obedience to a command spoken eighteen hundred years ago, to begin the enormous work of undermining heathenism and reclaiming the world to God. Among the glories of the century there is none greater than this. All other enterprises of beneficence must yield to this magnificent attempt to expel debasing superstitions and convey into every heart the ennobling influences of the Christian religion. The success already attained gives sure promise of results, the greatness of which we as yet but dimly perceive."—The Nineteenth Century. A History by Robert Mackenzie. London, 1880.

PREFATORY NOTE.

In the present Supplement to the Catalogues of January, 1892, and April, 1893, are contained the titles of 1260 works added to the Yale Library of Foreign Missions since the latter date. The whole number now accessible to the members of all departments of the University and to others interested is 4435, which is a near approach to the proposed collection of the entire Foreign Missionary literature of the Protestant churches of all denominations and in all parts of the world, including also a few works of acknowledged authority on the Missions of the Roman Catholic Church.

For the completion of this Historical Library on the broad basis contemplated at its establishment in 1891, is now only needed the addition of the remaining translations of the Scriptures and other works prepared by Foreign Missionaries, a few recent publications not received in season to find a place in the present Catalogue, and a small number of an earlier date which have become scarce and can only be obtained as special opportunities occur. In the latter class are the lacking volumes or numbers required to complete some of the sets of the Missionary Periodicals and Annual Reports (see pp. 14–17, 18–20). It is hoped that these may yet in some way be obtained.

To the Secretaries of the Foreign Missionary Societies in Europe and the United States, and to all other friends by whose generous interest and aid this library has been brought to its present state, especially to the venerable Dean Vahl, President of the Danish Missionary Society, Rev. Dr. Arthur F. Pierson, editor of the Missionary Review of the World, the Rev. Drs. A. C. Thompson and James S. Dennis, well known by their contributions to Missionary literature, and the Rev. H. P. Lawson of the Ahmednagar Mission in India, sincere thanks are due and are hereby gratefully presented.

To the officers of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the library is indebted for the recent gift of a unique collection of elementary books and booklets composed by its Missionaries in the work of reducing the languages of barbarous tribes to writing or teaching the rudiments of the common branches of learning (see p. 27). In some future age these feeble beginnings of a national literature in various pagan lands, if escaping the ravages of time, will be regarded with mingled curiosity and interest as impressive memorials of the labor and patience of Christian Missionaries in laying a firm basis for Christian civilization.

Another gift which calls for special mention is the considerable number of Reports of various local stations in the East connected with Missionary Societies in Europe and America. The larger part of these documents, which often give valuable details not elsewhere found, relating to Foreign Missionary service, were collected by the late Dr. Edward A. Lawrence in his Missionary tour and used by him in the preparation of his able and most instructive work on Modern Missions in the East. It is hoped that the number of these local reports will be steadily increased by contributions from the various Missionary Stations. They are sure to be prized and will be carefully preserved.

In the list of Missionary Periodicals which are regularly received, and bound at the close of the year (see pp. 14–17), are included nearly all issued at present in the United States, Great Britain and its Colonies, Central Europe and Scandinavia, India, China, and Japan. By means of these monthly and quarterly journals, many of which are conducted with signal ability, the latest intelligence in regard to the progress of the Christian faith in Pagan and Mohammedan countries is constantly and promptly supplied.

Should an Institute of Foreign Missions for the more perfect equipment of candidates for Missionary or Medical Service in non-Christian lands ever be added to the circle of Schools which constitute Yale University, its teachers and students would be provided at the outset, in this Collection, with the special works not to be found, except to a very limited extent, in even the largest libraries of general literature, but indispensable for the most thorough study of the propagation of Christianity in modern times.

PREFATORY NOTE.

In the present continuation of the catalogues of the Yale Library of Foreign Missions are contained the titles of 1029 volumes and pamphlets added since December, 1895. The whole number now on the shelves, and freely open to the members of all Departments of the University, is (by correcting two errors in the enumeration and adding several volumes transferred from the Trowbridge Reference Library marked thus (†) in the first catalogue) 5431. The additions since 1895 consist of (1) the current Missionary literature of various countries for the year 1896, including the seventy missionary periodicals regularly received and bound at the close of the year; (2) a collection of Dutch and Scandinavian works, relating especially to Christian Missions in Sumatra, Java, the Celebes and other islands in the East Indian archipelago, which are now out of print, and have at length been obtained partly at the auction sale of the library of the late Dr. Neurdenburg, President of the Netherlands Missionary Society and partly by the energetic efforts of the Skandinavisk Antiquariat, an enterprising bookselling firm in Copenhagen; (3) a set, so far as they had not been previously obtained, of the translations of the Bible or portions of it made by missionaries and published at the expense of the British and Foreign Bible Society, the combination of which with the full set of the translations published or for sale by the American Bible Society and presented to the Divinity School a few years since by the eminent Christian philanthropist, the Hon. William E. Dodge, deceased, of New York, forms an almost complete collection of these noble monuments of Missionary labor, in which honored representatives of the graduates of Yale in Syria, Persia, South Africa, Japan, the Gilbert Islands and other lands have had the privilege of bearing a part; and (4) books prepared by Missionaries in the vernacular languages of various Pagan countries, so far as they could be procured.

To the friends at home and abroad by whose generous coöperation this Historical Library has become a nearly complete repository of the American and European literature of Protestant Missions, I desire once more to express my sincerest thanks.

PREFATORY NOTE.

By the addition to the Yale Historical Library of Foreign Missions, of works published or collected since the issue of the catalogue of January, 1897, the whole number of volumes and pamphlets now on the shelves and freely open to the officers and students of all Departments of the University is 6,500, which constitute by far the larger part of the distinctively missionary literature of all Protestant countries and all denominations, including also the most important works relating to non-Christian religions not already in the general library of the University, and a few publications of acknowledged authority on the missions of the Roman Catholic Church.

The number might be very largely increased by the further addition of the works in general literature relating to explorations, voyages and travels, and the geography, ethnology, history, government, civil and political conditions, etc., of pagan and Mahomedan lands; but as the current and most important works on these subjects are contained in most College and Public Libraries and form no part of a distinctively Missionary Library, it has not been considered necessary or desirable to incorporate them into this collection.

A special feature of the present continuation of the series of catalogues issued since 1892 is the list of the large number of the earlier and later Annual Reports of American and European Missionary Societies and Boards, received partly from the Secretaries of these associations, but chiefly from the rooms of the New York Independent and hereby gratefully acknowledged. Although in many cases they may not be immediately needed for consultation, yet as contemporaneous and authoritative documents they are sure to be sought for and prized more and more highly, by the future historians of the great Missionary movement of the 19th century.

They have therefore been carefully catalogued, in the hope also that the Directors or other officers of these Societies will kindly supply, so far as practicable, the reports needed to make the sets complete, so that they can be bound and their preservation be thus more perfectly assured. If addressed to the "Yale Library of Foreign Missions," and sent by parcel post or Auf dem Wege der Buchhandlung to the foreign agent of the Library, Mr. Gustav E. Stechert (London : 2 Star Yard, Carey street, W. C. ; Leipzig, Hospital Strasse, No. 10 ; Paris, 76 Rue de Rennes), all charges for transportation will be paid by him and the receipt of the Reports will be promptly acknowledged.

It is only necessary to add that in the present catalogue, as in the preceding ones, the alphabetical order of arrangement in the names of authors has been followed, but in the case of Memoirs the name of the subject has the precedence. The list of Periodicals and Reports will be found under the initial letter of these words respectively. In the various modes of spelling Asiatic and African names, that adopted by the author of a volume has been generally followed, but no absolute uniformity has been attempted.

GEORGE E. DAY.

PREFATORY NOTE.

In the present continuation of the Series of Catalogues of the Yale Historical Library of Foreign Missions are contained the titles of the Protestant Foreign Mission publications issued or obtained since March, 1899, together with a few of the latest authoritative works relating to the missions of the Roman Catholic Church. The whole number now on the shelves and open freely to the members of all departments of the University, both for thorough research and for the latest intelligence relating to the propagation of Christianity in non-Christian lands, is somewhat over seven thousand, which represent nearly the entire body of missionary literature of all Protestant lands and denominations.

As a desirable addition to the indexes at the end of the present and previous catalogues, a special card-catalogue of the many valuable articles in Dr. Pierson's well-known Missionary Review of the World, now in its fifteenth volume, has been carefully prepared by Mr. C. S. Bodwell of the Divinity School and is ready for consultation in the Library room.

The aid of the several Foreign Missionary Societies in completing our sets of their Annual Reports, which constitute such an important part of contemporaneous missionary history, is respectfully solicited and will be warmly appreciated.

GEORGE E. DAY.
